General Instructions
 Section references are to the Internal Revenue Code unless otherwise noted.

Purpose of Form
 A person who is required to file an information return with the IRS must obtain your correct taxpayer identification number (TIN) to report, for example, income paid to you, real estate transactions, mortgage interest you paid, acquisition or abandonment of secured property, cancellation of debt, or contributions you made to an IRA.

Use Form W-9 only if you are a U.S. person (including a resident alien), to provide your correct TIN to the person requesting it (the requester) and, when applicable, to:

1. Certify that the TIN you are giving is correct (or you are waiting for a number to be issued).
2. Certify that you are not subject to backup withholding, or
3. Claim exemption from backup withholding if you are a U.S. exempt payee. If applicable, you are also certifying that as a U.S. person, your allocable share of any partnership income from a U.S. trade or business is not subject to the withholding tax on foreign partners' share of effectively connected income.

Note: If a requester gives you a form other than Form W-9 to request your TIN, you must use the requester's form if it is substantially similar to this Form W-9.

Definition of a U.S. person. For federal tax purposes, you are considered a U.S. person if you are:

- An individual who is a U.S. citizen or U.S. resident alien,
- A partnership, corporation, company, or association created or organized in the United States or under the laws of the United States,
- An estate (other than a foreign estate), or
- A domestic trust (as defined in Regulations section 301.7701-7).

Special rules for partnerships. Partnerships that conduct a trade or business in the United States are generally required to pay a withholding tax on any foreign partners' share of income from such business. Further, in certain cases where a Form W-9 has not been received, a partnership is required to presume that a partner is a foreign person, and pay the withholding tax. Therefore, if you are a U.S. person that is a partner in a partnership conducting a trade or business in the United States, provide Form W-9 to the partnership to establish your U.S. status and avoid withholding on your share of partnership income.

1. Corporate Overview

Since its founding in 1983, Covanta has become the world's largest provider of integrated EfW solutions to the public sector. EfW facilities have the annual capacity to turn more than 20 million tons of household and commercial waste into more than 9 million megawatt hours of clean renewable electricity and 9 billion pounds of steam. With 45 EfW operating facilities in North America, we have more experience than any other U.S.-based company in the full-service management, development, permitting, financing, design, construction, startup, commissioning, and operation of solid waste conversion and energy generation facilities.

No other vendor can match the scope and magnitude of Covanta's EfW facility operations experience. Along with an emphasis on optimizing the mechanics and efficiency of operations and maintenance, Covanta has established a management structure that promotes coordination among its operations, engineering and construction management and business management groups. This ongoing process helps to ensure that Covanta's clients receive the resulting benefits of increased efficiency, reliability and environmental performance.

Covanta recognizes that achieving an extraordinary level of performance requires not just the best equipment, but also the best people and processes. From our front-line operators to our senior management, we employ many of the industry's top experts in environmental engineering, process control, and facility maintenance. It is their talent and skill that have allowed us to consistently lead the industry in technological innovations, operational performance, safety and environmental compliance. The construction, project management, design engineering, operations engineering and support staff based at headquarters include long-time, experienced, highly educated professionals in a number of disciplines, including engineering, project management, construction, operations, maintenance, environmental compliance, health and safety, asset management, human resources, management information systems, accounting, finance and legal. A majority of these individuals, especially those in the technical and operating groups, have grown through the Covanta ranks, many having gained over 20 years of hands-on experience implementing and operating Covanta EfW projects.

1.1 Company History

Covanta, formerly Ogden Corporation, began its history as a public utility holding company in 1939. In 1948, the company registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as an investment company. Ogden Projects, through the activities of its subsidiary Ogden Martin Services, later emerged as a leader in the EfW market. Ogden based its involvement on two developments of the 1970s: rising energy costs and the decreasing availability of landfill space. In 1983, Ogden acquired the North American rights to the Martin GmbH waste stoker technology, the most widely used grate-based combustion technology in the industry.

Ogden Projects completed construction of its first facility in 1986. By 1992, the company had built and operated 21 facilities and had several additional facilities either under construction or awarded. Its 21 facilities had the capacity to process 20,675 TPD of waste. While the company was best known for EfW operations, Ogden offered a full range of waste disposal services, including recycling.

During the early 1990s, Ogden continued to strengthen its position in environmental services. In 1991, the company acquired complete control over ERC Environmental and Energy Services, which became Ogden Environmental and Energy Services. The acquisition of this successful consulting and engineering concern supported the position of Ogden's EfW operations and paved the way for further expansion.

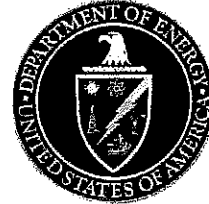

To mark its transformation into a pure-play energy company in 2001, Ogden changed its name to Covanta Energy Corporation, to acknowledge that public/private partnerships are the hallmark of our success. It is important to note that the change of name represents the depth of our technical and operational expertise and showcases the fact that we now operate more types of EfW technologies than any other company worldwide.

In 2006, Covanta acquired American Ref Fuel Holdings Corp., an owner/operator of six large EfW projects concentrated in the Northeastern U.S. for $2B. In 2007, Covanta acquired the operating businesses of EnergyAnswers Corporation, including two of our EfW facilities in Springfield and Pittsfield, MA, and two transfer stations for $61M. In 2009, Covanta acquired Veolia's EfW business in North America for $450M, expanding our operating base by 25%, adding seven EfW facilities, one transfer station, and more than 400 highly qualified employees.

1.2 Company Awards

Covanta is proud and honored to be recognized by local, state, and federal organizations for our dedication to innovation, safe, and sustainable operations and improving the quality of life in the communities we serve.

- Covanta received the Energy Innovator Award from the U.S. Department of Energy's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy.

- Covanta and its partners in the Fishing for Energy program received the Coastal America Partnership Award, the highest level award for partnership efforts, from the President of the United States.

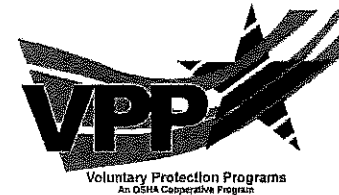

- Covanta U.S. facilities have consistently been recognized by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers for excellence in plant operations.

- Covanta was recognized by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities with its 2012 Outstanding Corporate Citizen Award for supporting the League's mission.

- Covanta has 40 sites participating in the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration's (OSHA) Voluntary Protection Program (VPP), which is the official recognition of outstanding efforts by employers and employees to achieve exemplary occupational safety and health policies, procedures and practices.

2. Qualifications and Experience

Covanta is an internationally recognized owner and operator of EfW and renewable energy projects and has provided reliable and sustainable municipal solid waste (MSW) management to communities since 1986. We operate 45 state-of-the-art facilities that convert everyday trash into clean, renewable energy for communities around the world. Covanta's 41 North American facilities supply electricity for approximately 1 million homes. We consider EfW-generated energy to be renewable because the MSW we use in our process is consistently replenishable, and all of the energy recovered by the EfW process preserves natural resources and avoids secondary impacts from mining and the combustion of those resources.

Covanta's U.S. operations process approximately 65% of the nation's EfW volume and generate, in combination with our other renewable energy facilities, approximately 8% of America's non-hydro renewable electricity. As part of the process, we recover over 400,000 tons of metal annually for recycling that would have otherwise been lost in landfills. Covanta supports recycling and supports programs that enable communities to recycle as much as possible. Studies have shown that communities that have an EfW facility typically enjoy higher recycling rates than the national average.¹ Processing MSW at Energy-from-Waste facilities for energy generation (steam or electricity) offsets, on average, one ton of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions for every ton of waste processed. This occurs by avoiding energy generated from fossil fuels, methane produced by decomposing trash at landfills (methane is an extremely potent GHG - about 25 times more than carbon dioxide) and recovering metals for recycling.

2.1 Transfer Station Operations

Covanta operates nearly 20 transfer stations across Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. The transfer stations have an aggregate design capacity of more than 24,000 tons per day.

2.2 EfW Operations Experience

No other vendor comes close to matching the scope and magnitude of Covanta's EfW facility operations experience. Along with an emphasis on optimizing the mechanics and efficiency of operations and maintenance, Covanta has established a management structure that promotes coordination among its operations, engineering and construction management and business management groups. This ongoing process helps to ensure that Covanta's clients receive the resulting benefits of increased efficiency, reliability and environmental performance.

Covanta recognizes that achieving an extraordinary level of performance requires not just the best equipment, but also the best people and processes. From our front-line operators to our senior management, we employ many of the industry's top experts in environmental engineering, process control, and facility maintenance. It is their talent and skill that have allowed us to consistently lead the industry in technological innovations, operational performance, safety and environmental compliance.

2.3 Government Relations

Covanta's Government Relations team is responsible for educating and influencing public policy decisions to advance EfW. The Government Relations department advocates for, or against, hundreds of proposed laws and regulations every year which impact Covanta and the EfW industry. We collaborate with facility management teams to engage local government clients, build coalitions with stakeholders and enlist politicians to help advocate for EfW.

On climate change, we positioned EfW as a carbon mitigating technology in states around the U.S., including Hawaii, Virginia and Pennsylvania. One ton of MSW processed in an EfW facility reduces greenhouse gases by approximately one ton. To date, Covanta has reduced 350 million tons of greenhouse gas emissions. New EfW facilities are eligible to generate carbon offset credits. The Lee County, Florida, facility has been selling offset credits into the voluntary market since 2009, for example.

In addition to public policy work, the Government Relations team engages supporters to assist facility teams in expediting permits and other government actions.

3. Financial Strength

Since 1983, Covanta has undertaken construction and long-term operation of more than $5 billion of EfW infrastructure, all successfully executed by special purpose local project subsidiaries whose performance is backed by a substantial parent corporate guarantee. Whether publicly or privately owned, Covanta's proven technology, track record of consistently constructing EfW facilities on time and within budget, and operating them successfully in compliance with agreements differentiate the company from any competitor. Financial results for all of the Covanta family of companies are filed as part of a consolidated statement under the ultimate parent company, CHC, which will serve as Covanta's parent guarantor.
